POETRY.

Angry Words.

Angry words are lightly spoken,
A rash and thoughtless hour;
Brightest links of love are broken
By their deep and poisonous power;
Hearts inspired by warmest feeling,
Never before by anger stirred,
Of are rent apart from healing
By a single angry word.

Poison-drops of care and sorrow,
Bitter poison-drops are they;
Leaving for the coming morrow
Sadder memories of to-day.
Angry words, O let them never
From the tongue unbridled slip;
May the heart's best impulses ever
Check them ere they soil the lip.

Love is much too pure and holy,
Friendship is too sacred far,
For a moment's reckless folly
Thus to desecrate and mar.
Angry words are lightly spoken,
Brightest links of love are broken
By a single angry word.

LITERATURE.

The Nymph of Nahant:—or, Pride and Punishment.

[FROM THE FLAG OF OUR UNION.]

Near the close of a warm summer afternoon, in the year 18—, a rich merchant belonging to the city of Boston, and who, for the sake of a name, we shall call Singlewood, arrived at his splendid summer residence situated upon the delightful peninsula of Nahant; and upon entering his parlor, was thus accosted by his daughter Lauretta:

"O, pa, I am so glad you have come."
"So am I, my dear," laconically replied the tender father. "Ah," he continued, as he looked around the splendidly furnished apartment, and saw sitting at its further end a young man habited in black, Mr. Harwood, "I am happy to see you."

"I thank you, sir," replied the young gentleman thus addressed, "and take this opportunity, as the letter writers say, to reciprocate the compliment."

"Pa," interposed Miss Lauretta, who by the way, was a very pretty girl, and also an insufferably proud one, "did you do as I requested you, when you arrived at the city yesterday?"

"To what do you refer, my dear?" said the father.

"Why, la, pa?" replied Lauretta, "how strangely dull you are this afternoon. I refer to the advertisement which I requested you to put in the morning papers."

"O, about the waiting-maid, hey?"

"Yes, pa, about the waiting-maid," answered Lauretta. "I really am almost dying for one."

"O, I attended to it," answered the father; "and so, of course, we must soon hear from one of them."

At this moment, Mr. Singlewood's son, a dashing young man of two-and-twenty, entered the parlor in full glee, saying as he did so:

"Well, father, she has come."
"Who has come, George?"

"O, a tutelar deity, a divinity, an angel, in the shape, attitude and garb of a waiting-maid."

"Speak seriously for once, George," said Mr. Singlewood, "and let us know what you mean."

"I mean to say, then," answered George, "that there is a confounded pretty girl in the kitchen, who wishes to hire out as waiting-maid."

"Tell Thomas to show her in here immediately," said Mr. Singlewood.

"Why pa?" exclaimed Lauretta, as she held up both hands deprecatingly towards him, "what are you thinking about?"

"Thinking about, my child—why?"

"Why, to have a common waiting-maid introduced into your best parlor. If Dr. Pippinose was only present, he would pronounce you at once a fit candidate for a lunatic asylum."

"I did not without much consideration in ordering her in here, it is true," replied Mr. Singlewood; "but it is too late to retract now for the fiat has gone forth, and here comes our waiting-maid."

As the rich merchant finished speaking, a young girl, apparently not more than sixteen years of age, entered the parlor, who was very coarsely but neatly dressed, and whose beauty of form and countenance, as Harwood noticed at a single glance, was far superior to that of Miss Lauretta; although the latter was generally styled amongst her numerous select acquaintances, the belle of Nahant.

"What is your name, Miss?" Mr. Singlewood, said soon after she entered his august presence.

"I am called Nelly Gray, sir, the Nymph of Nahant."

"Nymph of what, did you say, Miss?" interposed Lauretta.

"Of Nahant," answered Nelly, modestly; "that is, I have generally been termed so by the few persons with whom I am acquainted."

"Have you any father or mother?" asked Mr. Singlewood.

"No, sir," replied Nelly, "but I am the adopted child of Mr. Peter Gray, an old fisherman, who resides near Long Beach, in Lynn, and who as long as he was able supplied the residents of this place with fish. By his honest and untiring industry, he has managed to rear a large family, including myself; but as he has been sick for this year past, and cannot now do as he once could, I resolved, upon seeing your advertisement for a waiting-maid in one of the morning papers, to endeavor to obtain the situation, and try to do something for myself."

"How came you to be adopted to this poor fisherman?" said Mr. Singlewood.

"According to Mr. Gray's account of the matter," replied Nelly, "he picked me up at sea, in an open boat, when I was apparently not more than two years of age."

"That's what I call highly romantic, and decidedly improbable," whispered Miss Lauretta in Harwood's ear.

"And is that all you know concerning your early history?" continued Mr. Singlewood.

"There is only one other simple fact connected with it, with which I am acquainted," answered Nelly, "and that is, that a very valuable diamond necklace was found upon my neck, which I have always worn ever since my discovery by Mr. Gray."

"That is what I call romance, done up in calico and cotton," whispered Lauretta to Harwood.

"And which may possibly turn out to be the romance of reality," answered Harwood, in the same low tone of voice.

As Mrs. Singlewood (Lauretta's mother) had gone on a visit to some celebrated medical springs, for the benefit of her delicate health, her worthy husband took it upon himself to hire Nelly Gray, as a waiting-maid for his proud daughter; who, as soon as the terms of Nelly's future service had been agreed upon, and she herself sent into the kitchen, addressed Harwood as follows:

"Well, Charles, what do you think of our new waiting-maid?"

"I think," replied Harwood, in a tone of earnestness which somewhat startled his fair questioner, "that she is a very pretty, modest and sensible sort of a girl."

"She's a confounded sight prettier than you are, sis, at all events," chimed in Mr. Singlewood, junior.

"You know, George, that I never made any great pretensions to beauty," replied Lauretta, poutingly.

"I know that you never did anything else," replied George, with the utmost gayety of tone and manner.

"Well, gentlemen," said Lauretta, rising, "you must excuse me, whilst I go into the kitchen to instruct my waiting-maid in the diamond necklace, as to the future duties of menial and unromantic situation."

"Don't lord it over her too hard, will you, sis?" said George.

"I shall teach her to know her place, and also to keep it," replied Lauretta, tartly.

"As you are her superior in wealth and station, Miss Singlewood," interposed Harwood, "I hope that you will treat this unfortunate girl with all due kindness and moderation."

"I do not wish to be instructed by any one as to how I shall treat my domestics," replied the proud beauty.

"Very well, Miss," replied Harwood coolly. "You shall for the future be troubled no farther, either by me or my instructions."

So saying, Harwood immediately rose and took his leave.

"There, you've done it now, sis," said George, as Harwood departed, "with a very particular vengeance."

"Done what, I should like to know?"

"Why, you have lost the best matrimonial offer that ever you had, or ever will have."

"I doubt it," replied Lauretta, "for I can have twenty offers to-morrow, if I want them."

"Not from such matches, as Harwood would be, though," replied George.

"I am not so certain about that," answered Lauretta, "for the newly arrived French Count Mauvais, the gentleman in the black imperial, has been wishing to be introduced to me, this long time, and I think now that I shall soon give him a chance."

"Go it then, sis, whilst you are young," replied her gay brother, "but be careful that you don't catch a tartar, that's all."

"Whoever catches you will get one, at any rate," replied Lauretta; who thereupon left the parlor, and repairing to the kitchen, immediately assumed the duties of a mistress over one who as far as beauty of person and nobleness of mind was concerned, was as far above her, as the heavens are above the earth.

Now it so happened, that Charles Harwood, who was a young lawyer of correct habits and uncommon intellectual capacity, and whose father was a near neighbor of Mr. Singlewood's, both at Boston and on Nahant, and who was more than his equal in point of fortune, had called upon Lauretta, upon a very afternoon above alluded to, for the purpose of offering her his heart and hand; but when he saw the proud and upstart manner in which the merchant's daughter seemed disposed to treat the unfortunate girl, whom the cruel force of circumstances had thrust as it were into her service, his noble mind at once recoiled from the previous object of his choice, as though she were a basilisk, and he left the house of his intended in disgust, completely cured of the passion he had before felt for the proud, haughty, and overbearing Lauretta. No sooner however, was her deceitful image dismissed from his mind, than it was filled by another, and that other was, need we say it! the fair and graceful image of Nelly Gray, the Nymph of Nahant. Long after he retired to rest that night, did Charles Harwood think of the modest charms of Lauretta's waiting-maid, and, when at last he slept, he dreamed that Nelly stood before him a beautiful and elegantly dressed bride.

A few days after the occurrence of the events previously related, Harwood departed from America, for the purpose of making the tour of Europe; and although he was absent nearly two years, yet the image of the fair Nymph of Nahant, and the mystery which enveloped her infant history, remained as fresh in his mind, as it was on the day it first obtained a place there.

Time wore on, and poor Nelly Gray, although she was subjected to all the petty annoyances which Lauretta's pride and ill-humor and even envy could dictate, still performed her various duties promptly and without a murmur; and this she continued until her immediate mistress was married to Count Mauvais, who soon afterwards took his fair and proud bride away with him to Paris; where according to his own representations, he owned a vast amount of real and personal estate.

Eighteen months had elapsed after the first entrance of Nelly Gray into Mr. Singlewood's family, when that gentleman returned from a voyage to South America, accompanied by another merchant of about the same age, who, whilst sitting in the merchant's parlor during a cold and stormy winter's evening, was addressed by Mr. Singlewood, as follows:

"I believe, sir, that I once heard you observe upon our passage home, that some years ago you was shipwrecked, near Boston harbor?"

And this moment Nelly Gray entered the parlor, and set about doing some work which she had been appointed to do by Mrs. Singlewood; that lady having chosen to retain her as her own waiting-maid, after the departure of her daughter for France.

"Yes, sir," replied the strange merchant, whose name was Carlingford, "I was shipwrecked some twenty years ago, on what is called Nantucket shoals. I was then on my passage to New York, in company with my wife and an infant daughter, who was then but eighteen months old. The brig that I was in struck upon the shoals at night, during a violent storm, and immediately went to pieces."

"And were all hands drowned?" said Singlewood.

"All except myself and one sailor," replied Carlingford, "and we only saved ourselves by having the forethought to lash ourselves to a spar, from off which we were taken the next morning by the boat's crew of a ship bound to Quebec."

"Your wife and child, what became of them?"

"When the brig first struck," replied Carlingford with a deep sigh, "I placed my child in the boat, thinking that would be the safest place, but alas, a moment or two afterwards a heavy sea took it from its lashings, and it was born away with my beloved Anna, to destruction. My poor wife was drowned in her cabin."

"Did you—your daughter, sir," stammered Nelly Gray, "have anything about her person by which she could be identified?"

"Nothing, Miss, but a very valuable diamond necklace, capable of extension, which was presented to her when she was six months old by her uncle, Lord Carpenter."

"Then, sir," exclaimed poor Nelly, as she tore the necklace from her fair neck, "here is my uncle's gift—FATHER!"

"DAUGHTER!" exclaimed Mr. Carlingford, after examining the necklace, and then clasping his long lost child in his arms, that stern man wept for joy like a very infant.

As Mr. Carlingford was very rich, and had resolved to settle in the vicinity of Boston, he took a large house upon Nahant and made his fair daughter, Anna, its mistress, not forgetting however, to make Peter Gray the poor fisherman who had saved her from destruction, comparatively independently for life. In this situation was Anna Carlingford or rather poor Nelly Gray, found by Harwood when he returned from his European tour; and a short time afterwards, the dream which he had dreamed concerning her on the first night of their acquaintance was fully realized, and the poor waiting-maid of Lauretta Singlewood became the bride of one of the first lawyers in the whole country.

Whilst Mr. and Mrs. Harwood were sitting around their parlor fire, about six years after the commencement of our story, a servant entered and informed them, that a poor woman was at the door, asking for charity.

"Send her in here, immediately," said Harwood.

The servant obeyed, and the next moment ushered into the parlor a poor, ragged and ill-dressed female, who was immediately recognized by Mrs. Harwood as having once been her proud and haughty mistress, LAURETTA SINGLEWOOD.

In explanation of her present situation, she stated that, upon arriving at Paris, she found that her husband, instead of being a French Count, was a gambler of the most notorious description, but her indomitable pride would not suffer her to make the fact known to her parents, until she had lived in misery with him for five years, when he ended his villainous career by committing suicide. Then she thought of coming back to her parents, and did so, but she found them not, for two years previous her father had died a bankrupt, and her mother soon died of a broken heart, whilst of her brother she could hear nothing; and so found herself finally obliged to ask charity from her whom she had often treated with contumely and contempt.

Thus, dear reader, does false pride always bring its own punishment.

The charity which the poor woman asked was not only granted, but she was immediately installed as governess over Harwood's children, which situation she retains at the present time, being always treated with the greatest kindness by her former waiting-maid—NELLY THE NYMPH OF NAHANT.

Who is FANNY FERN?—She is the daughter of Mr. Willis of Boston, the oldest living editor in New England, and the sister of N. P. Willis of the Home Journal, and of Richard Storrs Willis of the Musical Review. She made a run-away marriage, which turned out unhappily, went to the west with her husband, and disliked both the country and her companion separated from the one, and quitted the other rather unceremoniously. Fanny Fern, like a true woman, fond of mystery, indignant at slight, and anxious to create a sensation, has reputed her literary connexions, and having done so, now denies that she has any.

A young lady lost her balance the other day while looking over the wharf at Norfolk, and fell in to the dock. Two gentlemen immediately jumped in and rescued her—But the Beacon says that the danger is not yet over, as one of the gentlemen has been troubled with a pain in his left side, near the region of the heart ever since.

AGRICULTURAL.

Work for the Month.

AUTUMN ploughing may now be commenced with spirit, and continued until the ground becomes severely frozen with the winter's frost. Clay soils are benefited to a much greater degree by exposure to the action of the frosts than those of a sandy quality.—This is the proper period for experimenting in deep ploughing, and none should be satisfied with the long established habit of merely skimming the surface some three or four inches deep when there is a probability that by ploughing three or four inches deeper, their crops might be greatly increased. A few trials by each farmer even upon a small scale, would more effectually change public opinion on this point than any thing either of an argumental or experimental nature that we may have to advance; therefore we hope that the friends of Canadian agricultural improvement will lose no time in making a gradation of experiments in deep-ploughing upon a scale that will upon the next sown crop finally settle this long discussed topic. When land is intended to be brought into a fine and very superior state of cultivation, it may be ploughed very early in the autumn, and subsequently harrowed two or three times, and just before the closing in of winter, it may be cross-ploughed, by rafting or ribbing, as it is usually termed; the rafters or ribs should be about two feet from centre to centre. This mode of winter-ploughing exposes a large surface to the action of the winter's frost, whereby the most stubborn soils may be converted into a light friable mould. The system of rafting may with advantage be practiced, if the land be pretty free from couch-grass, with only one furrow.

This is a favourable month for draining low lands, and in all cases where the cultivator's means will admit of the outlay, this branch of labour should be attended to, even at the sacrifice of many little jobs that are desirable should be performed this month. When under drains are made, they should be constructed at least thirty inches in depth; and if the timber or material employed be of a durable nature, such drains will prove effective in keeping the land dry for fifty years.

Firewood for winter's use may now be chopped and piled ready for drawing, by the commencement of winter.

Immense Natural Bee-Hive.

In a cavern on the right bank of the Colorado, about seven miles from Austin, there is an immense Hive of wild bees, which is one of the interesting curiosities of that section.—The entrance of this cavern is situated in a ledge of limestone, forming a high cliff which rises almost perpendicularly from the river bank to the height of about one hundred and fifty feet from the waters edge. This cliff fronts partly on a small stream named Bill creek. The mouth of the cavern is about ten feet from the top of the cliff. In a warm day a dark stream of bees may be constantly seen winding out from the cavern like a long dark wreath of smoke. The stream often appears one or two feet in diameter near the cliff and gradually spreads out like a fan, growing thinner and thinner at a distance from the cavern, until it disappears. The number of bees in this cavern must be incalculably great—probably greater than the number in a thousand or ten thousand ordinary hives.

The oldest settlers say that the hive was there when they first arrived in that country; and it is quite probable that it existed in the same state many years previous to the settlement of the country. The bees, it is said, have never swarmed, and it is not improbable that the hive has continued for more than a century to increase, year after year, in the ratio that other swarms increase. The cave appears to extend back many rods into the ledge, and probably has many lateral chambers. The bees doubtless occupy many of these lateral chambers, and it is probable that new swarms annually find new chambers to occupy and thus they are prevented from going off to a distance in search of hives. Some of the neighboring settlers have repeatedly, by blasting the rocks, opened a passage into some of these chambers, and procured by this means many hundred pounds of honey.

But the main deposits are situated too deep in the ledge to be reached without great difficulty, and perhaps danger. A company was formed at Austin, a few years since, for the purpose of exploring the cavern and removing the honey; but some untoward event prevented the accomplishment of the undertaking.—It was estimated that there are many tons of honey and wax in this immense hive, and if its treasures could be extracted readily, they would doubtless be found far more valuable than the contents of any gold or silver mine that adventurers have been speaking of for years in that section.—Texas Telegraph.

A new tuber, the Chinese Yam, has been introduced in Paris, from China, which the chemists and experimenters say possesses all the requirements of the potato, and may take the place of that plant as a culinary vegetable. Specimens have also been introduced in England, where they thrive well. The French Chemist says of the Yam:

"It has been domestic from time immemorial, is perfectly hardy in this climate (Paris), its root is bulky, rich in nutritive matter, eatable when raw, easily cooked, either by boiling or roasting, and then having no other taste than that of flour (secule). It is as much a ready-made bread as the potato, and it is better than butat, or sweet potato."

Blackberry Wine.—Ripe berries, bruised, 29 gallons; pour on them water, hot, 22 gallons. Let them stand three days, then add sugar, 40 pounds. Ferment, rack, and add ginger, bruised, 2 ounces; catechu powder, 2 ounces; red tartar, 8 ounces; cloves 1 oz.

COLONIAL.

The present Cabinet is notoriously a creation of Mr. Hincks. In proof of this we see it stated in one of our exchanges, that prior to the meeting of Parliament he had stated to the Hon. Samuel Mills that he anticipated a Cabinet disruption, and should advise Lord Elgin, in such a case, to send for Sir Allen MacNab! Yet, with the bold effrontery peculiar to the outside Premier, he denied on the floor of the House that he had given His Excellency any such counsel! Pishood is an appropriate companion of Treachery. It is also worthy of notice, that Sir Allan and Mr. Hincks held their consultations, and formed their plans, on the 17 Sunday succeeding the resignation.—Examiner.

MR. HINCK'S LAST JOE.—The following we take from the Picton Gazette. We would like to know who the member of Parliament it was promised the bribe:

"We have heard from Quebec of one of those little 'private transactions' which were so much in vogue with members of the late Ministry, that people innocently supposed they enjoyed a monopoly of that kind. As the story runs, it is one of the most appetizing cases on record for lovers of the marvellous in political turpitude. Some short time since, Judge Powell, one of the County judges of Wellington, died; and a gentleman who desired the vacant place offered a member of the House £500 if he could procure the appointment from the Government for him.—The worthy member, who formerly made profession of Conservatism, but more recently avowed 'Railroad politics' to be his motto—thereby meaning an aptitude for selling himself to the highest bidder—immediately put himself in communication with the chief chiseller. This was a job exactly suited to the taste of the latter; but as he was at the moment de facto head of the Government, and extremely desirous of securing the election of Mr. Cartier as Speaker, he made it a condition that the ex-Conservative should vote for that gentleman. Rumour further says, that the bargain was fulfilled on both sides—that the man who paid the consideration got the judgeship, and that the records of the House show that the man who received it voted with the Ministry."

THE UNKINDEST CUT OF ALL!—Many severe things have been written about the late sudden wheel of Sir Allen MacNab, but the worst we have seen is contained in the following little paragraph. It is from the Woodstock Gazette, John G. Vansittart's paper:—"It matters little to us that Sir Allen MacNab has deserted his colors and betrayed his cause; the shame and disgrace of such desertion attach not to us. Every man must bear his own burden. Sir Allen's is not one which we would like to have put on our shoulders; but if he is willing to carry it, all that the country is concerned in ascertaining is, that he is able."

Sir Allen is sunk low, indeed, when he carries a burden which Vansittart would throw off in disgust. Truly, he is to be pitied.—Globe.

THE POPE AND THE PRELATE.—Mr. Morin will go with the bishops. He likes ease; he wants firmness; he is a strong partisan; he will knock under to Sir Allen MacNab, Lord Elgin, the Colonial Office, and Messrs. Ross, Cayley, Drummond, Macdonald & Co. The general feeling here is that Hincks has sold the reformers. The Quebec Gazette says:

"It is now pretty clear that the Coalition recently proclaimed owes its origin and completion to the late Inspector General. He may reiterate denial, but his inability to tell two stories alike makes his denials of no account. There has been altogether too happy a combination of circumstances to admit the possibility of their being fortuitous. Lord Elgin, Sir Allen MacNab, Messrs. Hincks, Morin, Drummond, Ross, and Spence, perfectly understand each other. They have played their game with much adroitness; but knavery, like avarice, often overreaches itself. In this instance the stranger has been made an apparent as to fail of deceiving the most superficial observer."

WHO BROKE UP THE GOVERNMENT?—The Ingersoll Chronicle, one of the Hincks' journals, says—

"There can be no doubting the fact, that the present amalgamation has been brought about by the success which has attended Mr. George Brown's endeavors to divide the reform party, and it is difficult to conjecture what will be the result. We observe that some of the Brown party complain bitterly of the turn in the political wheel, and taunt the late Inspector General with having been the cause of a reform Parliament having at its head a Tory."

If the Chronicle means to say that the exposures made by Mr. Brown and others of the treason to great principles, and the actual corruption of the late Government, turned them out, we entirely agree with our cotemporary. It means to say that Mr. Brown or any other man outside the Government by a mere personal opposition, then he is wrong. The conversations of the present Government betrayed them. The loud-voiced indignation of the people at their treachery and dishonesty made it impossible for them to hold out.—Globe.

A young man whose name we have not heard, had his leg taken off by the machinery of a thrashing machine, while working at Mr. Proctor's, in the township of King.—Colonist.

The Quebec and Richmond Railroad, it is said, will be opened for traffic on the 2nd Oct. The distance between Montreal and Quebec by this line will be 172 miles.

On Friday, the 15th inst., 10,000 tickets were sold for admission to the Exhibition at Quebec.

The New Era.

Newmarket, Friday, October 6th, 1854.

The New Cabinet.

The question is frequently asked, why condemn the present Coalition, when they have promised to carry out all the Reform measures to which the late Ministry were pledged? and looking at the question in the abstract, is a very plausible way of reasoning; but on a careful and attentive scrutiny into its various bearings, reasons incontestable are presented for condemning them. In the first place, the present House number something like one hundred professing Reformers, and the Tories only about thirty; therefore, a minority should not be allowed to govern a majority. Had there not been competent men left among the Reformers, after the resignation of the late Administration, the case would be materially altered; but such not being the fact, we have an instance of political turpitude, in the formation of the present coalition, unequalled.

Sir Allan McNab has often been tried and found wanting; and the course pursued by Lord Elgin, in calling on him to form a new Cabinet, can only be looked upon as a case of almost unparalleled injustice to the Reformers of Canada—Upper Canada, at any rate. Particularly so, when the sudden "Jim Crow wheel-about" is taken into consideration. A man's sincerity in promises made can only be judged by his former conduct; remembering this rule and then taking a cursory glance at Sir Allan's precedents, no guarantee is afforded for the future. Reformers, through the secret wire-pulling and bland promises of Hincks and Co., on the one hand, and the apostasy from principle of McNab and Co. on the other, have been completely sold.—True, not sold past redemption, at least we still may hope so; but by the formation of the present coalition a precedent is afforded which may prove a serious barrier to a free expression of public opinion—consequently prove injurious to the welfare of the Province. If men like those selected from the Tory Bench will sell their principles for office, they will sell us if an opportunity is afforded; or perhaps mortgage or broad acres and tax the farming community to sustain them and fill their "flesh pots." Examine Inspector Cayley's precedents; take a retrospective view of that gentleman's past public career. With all Hincks' faults, he is preferable to Cayley; for when the late Inspector General assumed the duties of that office, previously held by Cayley, Canada bonds were only worth about 75 per cent in the Home market, they stand at 6 and 7 per cent premium now; how long they will remain so under the present General time will tell. The truth is, we have but little faith in the existing Combination; they may secularize the Reserves, and no doubt the decided majority in the House favorable to such a measure will force them to do so; but where is the useful legislation from a Government not possessing the confidence of a majority of the House—merely existing on sufferance. The love of office may do much, and cause certain parties to abandon principles they for years previously professed and maintained; but depend upon it as soon as they imagine themselves firmly ensconced in their new birth, the hydra-headed monster of fossilism will present itself. What else can we expect? Have they not inherited these principles from their fore-fathers? and have they not cherished them as sacred from infancy? The sudden conversion, therefore, of certain leaders in the new Ministry cannot be looked upon but with suspicion, to say the least.

In the second place, we oppose them because they would not commit themselves to the details, in reference to those measures proposed to be introduced by the late Administration. For instance—would a Conservative secularization Bill be as likely to carry out in detail the same provisions and principles as a radical one? we are inclined to believe not. We might also ask the same question in reference to the Legislative Council Bill, or a Federal Union of the Provinces. It is not to be expected; their long cherished principles—their political education—their sympathies have always been adverse to these changes. When we look back to the days of Compaction, or Downing Street tyranny, and place up in our mind's eye the course pursued by the leaders of the existing combination, and from that time to the present, we have confidence—all hope, in their new

We also oppose them because, as before hinted, that better than can be found in the Assembly, to assume the reins of power. There was no need for the existing coalition, and by allowing it to be dissolved, a downright flagrant injustice was perpetrated upon the Reformers of this Province. True, the late Administration was a professed Reform one; but because reformers became dissatisfied with that Ministry's policy, or rather their speculations, it does not imply that they wanted their enemies in power, or that a small minority should rule a large majority. The idea is so preposterous that really we have not patience to dwell upon it.

Another reason, why we oppose them is in consequence of the control of the patronage that must necessarily flow through a Ministry. While Reformers are in the ascendancy and maintain to large a proportion in the country, it is right—that it just—is in accordance with precedent, that Tories should fill the various offices in the country that Ministers have the appointment of. Had we the power of electing our County Officers, &c., the case would be materially altered; but situated as we are, it is depriving a majority of their just privileges. Reformers have long enough held an inferior position; for in the "good old days of yore" they were compelled to succumb to almost any infliction—and fight against the sneers, ridicule, and domineering tyranny of those very men to whom is entrusted such mighty powers. It is on account of this that we say reformers were sold—yes, and sold by our professing friends. We say sold, because we have no faith, in sudden conversions. Sir Allan and Cayley, it is true, profess to have abandoned former principles, and adopted the line of policy of the late Administration; but we fear the change was too soon wrought to have a deep and lasting effect. What, Sir Allan, of the steamer Caroline celebrity, becoming a Clear Grit, who would have thought it? Well may his former friends say, he must be beside himself. It is certainly a case of unparalleled statesmanship—so great, so inartificial, so den and so unexpected a change.

The above are only a few of the reasons why we oppose the present Coalition. More might be adduced; but our space will not permit this week.

OUR TASK.

The task of conducting a paper, is one the most peculiar, and differs very widely from any other profession. An editor is supposed to be something in comparison like a hand-organ; all you have to do is turn the handle, and out grinds the music: only give him one sentence and he is supposed to grind out editorial as long as the moral law with the catechism attached,—write on all subjects, whether real, personal, imaginary, hypothetical or prescribed by a spontaneous altogether unknown to any other avocation. He is also supposed to be quite conversant with the history of every body and everything, from the Philosophy of Heathen Mythologists down to Joe Smith or the Know Nothings. For instance: some one will come in the sanctum of an editor and give as a text the word—

Love.—Well, the editor commences—O, holy, O, heavenly, O, blissful goddess. Long before this terrestrial hemisphere was formed, by the commanding fiat of Deity, out of chaos, thy graces reverberated throughout the realms of the New Jerusalem. And when the apostate lord of earth had violated the eternal laws of heaven, thus rendering himself obnoxious in the eyes of the Almighty, it was the all-powerful influence of Love that prompted the second person in the adorable Trinity, to lay aside his glory—assume a mantle of clay—suffer a most ignominious death, that man might again be exalted to the high position from whence he had fallen.

Scarcely does the editor get his organ grinding, when in comes a second party and desires a despatch on—

HOPE.—Well, he commences—Hope, thou main-spring of life—thou friend to the tried and tempted,—the solace, the comfort of the poor and the needy, the widow and the orphan; how thorny would be the path of life without thee. In all ages—under all circumstances—in all climes, thou art to be found buoying up the spirits of the distressed—proving a balm to every wound, and a cordial to every fear—no matter whether Christian or Mahomedan, Hotentot or Hindoo, white or black, bond or free—thine ever welcome aid is extended to all. When the most noble specimen of all God's creation revolted against the laws of heaven, thereby incurring the wrath and angry frowns of Deity, Hope, celestial hope! saved man from yielding to the worst passions of his soul that was then enkindled, else he must have yielded up his spirit the victim of remorse and shame. Yes, hope; at this trying juncture, lent her radiant smiles, and bid the drooping spirit not despair. Hope! times without number, has enkindled a fire in the souls of the children of men, that has enabled them to wade, to successful conquest, through seas of human blood, in defence of the right—overturned dynasty after dynasty—curtailing the domineering and usurping sway of the tyrant, and establishing harmony and concord amongst the nations of the earth. It was Hope that sustained the meek and humble followers of Jesus throughout their sore trials and temptations, and urged them on to successful conquest, until the religion of the cross overcame every obstacle and finally became the holy theme and guiding star of its most inveterate persecutors.

Here we are again stopped by a third party, who, by the way, belongs to the society of Friends, and desires a paragraph on—

PEACE.—Long before the mandate had gone forth commanding chaos into order, or light spoken into existence—even when the Almighty reigned in Triune splendor the sole existence in unbounded space, Peace, holy, heavenly peace had had her birth. And when the creative fiat had gone forth commanding worlds into existence from chaotic matter, Peace held her sway, and globes moved forth harmoniously into their respective orbits; yes, and "when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy," Peace, blissful peace, led on the sacred choir. Holy angels, surrounded by its influence, chaunted in heavy only strains to their Maker in harmony and concord.

Well, the organ had scarcely got in working order, when in comes the Politician, with a new text. The editor very politely informs him that the organ is completely out of tune; but hopes to have it repaired next week.—(Exit, politician, with a frown). This is the life of an editor: every body to please,—and that, too, just at the moment; and in pleasing one you very often displease another.

"A word to the wise," &c.

Parliament House.

The present House will either have to fix the location for the seat of Government, or still continue to travel from Upper to Lower Canada, and vice versa, every four years.—We are free to express our opinion that it is inexpedient to fix its permanency at present, and for this reason: If the New Governor, Sir E. Head, comes to Canada charged with the mission of forming a Federal Union of the Provinces, we shall then be separated from Lower Canada; and will require to have the Parliament Buildings erected farther west than we should otherwise, or would agree with present arrangements. Kingston, Bytown and Montreal are the only three places named as aspiring to the honor of being the capital of Canada; and perhaps, were the location to be fixed immediately, one of these three places would be chosen, but if we were separated from Lower Canada, then Toronto would bear the palm.

These things, taken into consideration, we are not in favor of fixing the location, and expending large sums of money by way of erecting Parliament Buildings, until after something is definitely known in reference to the Federal Union.

Belleville Seminary.

The Bowmanville Messenger thus refers to the Seminary now in course of erection at Belleville:

"This is an institution located, as its name implies, in Belleville, a large and flourishing town, at the head of the Bay of Quinte. The buildings were commenced in June last, and are now in process of erection. Accommodations will be furnished for about four hundred students. Both sexes are to be admitted, under proper restrictions, and all the advantages of a commercial and classical education will be afforded for males, while females will have facilities for instruction in all the ornamental and solid branches. The institution is to be conducted by the Methodist Episcopal body, thus affording a guarantee for the safety of the children committed to it; but at the same time, it is warranted, in the terms of the deed by which the land is held, to be free from all religious tests, all denominations having access to it, and pupils attending such place of worship as their parents or guardians may direct. The Rev. J. H. Johnson, the General Agent, has recently been canvassing Whiteby, and one or two of the adjacent Townships, where he has received very liberal subscriptions from all classes. He is now in Bowmanville for the same object, and we trust so laudable an enterprise will be sustained by our citizens. The institution is of a Provincial character, and we hope Canada will not long remain behind the sister States with respect to these higher Seminaries of learning."

We understand that the Rev. Mr. Johnson is now in the neighborhood of Newmarket, soliciting subscriptions for the above Seminary, and his call will no doubt be heartily responded to.

The Governor General's Visit to Toronto.

We copy the following from the Leader of the 4th inst.

Yesterday His Excellency the Governor General arrived in Toronto. His Excellency was accompanied by Niagara by his Private Secretary, Oliphant Esq.; the Hon. F. Hincks; Sir Cusack Roney; Hon. J. Willson &c. &c.—The Authorities of the University, the Members of the Mechanics Institute, the several National Societies, and the Fire Brigade purposed joining the Corporation in procession and receiving His Excellency upon landing at the wharf, but owing to his Lordship having arrived an hour before the expected time, the above bodies were not present in the order, intended. The bell from the St. Lawrence Hall, however, having announced that the Peacocks—in which vessel His Excellency was conveyed from Niagara—was in sight the citizens mustered in great numbers upon the wharf. Upon the approach of the boat His Excellency was continually cheered, and the gangway having been placed across from it to the land, the Mayor and members of the Corporation went on deck.—His Worship the Mayor then read and presented the following address:

To His Excellency the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine Governor General of British North America, &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency. We, the Members of the Municipality of the City of Toronto having heard with great pleasure of the intention of your Excellency to visit our city before your return to Quebec, resolved to embrace the opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the distinguished consideration due to your Excellency, as the Representative in this Colony of our gracious and well beloved Sovereign the Queen.

We have much pleasure in congratulating your Excellency upon the increased prosperity of the Province at large during the continuance of your Excellency's Administration of the Government.

We believe that next to the proper administration of the law, under our admirable Constitution that the present and future prosperity of this City and of this Province generally will be best subserved by the most extended information being given to the people of Europe of the salubrity of our climate, the fertility of our soil, our vast resources in timber and minerals and our increasing facilities by hand and water for the profitable pursuits of commerce and agriculture.

We beg to acknowledge our feelings of gratitude to your Excellency for the great zeal and ability with which you have upon all public occasions (but more particularly during your late visit to the mother country) advocated our best interest and recommended to the favorable consideration of the people of England the growing importance of the Province and the many inducements it offered to the capitalists, the artisan, and the laborer for the accumulation of wealth and the possession of a happy home.

We wish also to convey our acknowledgments of the recent eminent services of your Excellency to this Province in expediting by your successful exertions the progress of measures by the government of the United States as well as our own to establish reciprocal free trade between that country and the British American Colonies; and our gratification that the measure was unanimously concurred in by both branches of our Legislature.

that the City of Toronto has not been behind any other portion of the province in the onward progress since your last visit, and that its citizens are not less hospitable than your Excellency found them on that occasion.

Permit us in conclusion to assure your Excellency of our grateful remembrance of the uniform kindness and affability of your Excellency and Lady Elgin during your sojourn amongst us, and to express our earnest wishes for the future prosperity and happiness of your Excellency and family.

Signed on behalf of the Municipality,
J. G. BEARD, Mayor.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the New Era.

Having had the perusal of the New Era of the 22nd September, I cannot but be pained for his kindness—and to see an article headed "The Son and Gem," which pleased me much. The statement respecting the nomination at East York, which the New Era (1) has the hardihood to deny, (in his usual language) IS CORRECT. I am quite certain, sir, that notwithstanding his ungovernable course towards you and others, your sympathy would have been moved had you seen him at that occasion—poor fellow! after having circulated his Address "to the Independent electors of East York," and coming such a distance to tender his services as their representative, and not find one individual amongst the assembled crowd of electors present, who would consent to be his nominator—in fact, there were persons present uncharitable enough to say that he was the victim of a hoax, or he could not count such fully as to present himself for the suffrages of intelligent men like the electors of the East Riding of York!

It is a fortunate circumstance for the Gem, (1) that there were not two persons sufficiently cruel to carry the hoax any further, by nominating and seconding him—or he certainly would be, ere this, in charge of that estimable man—Dr. Workman. It appears by a late Gem, that he is now under the impression that Chief Justice Robinson dislikes him. What a lucky thing for "the Chief," that his patent of nobility was gazetted, before the Queen became acquainted with the complaint of the man of 277—frankness and independence. I have no doubt he sends a number of his Gem to Court, while he is in his present state. I hope, sir, that you will not be too severe on him in future, as every allowance should be made for him under existing circumstances—he cannot do any mischief either as a Lawyer, an Editor, or a Legislator (1)—for reasons that every one knows, who have had half an hour's intercourse with him. Poor fellow!—his friends are grieved; but he cannot understand the reason why—nor is it to be expected.

I am, &c.,
(A W) RICHARD-MAX.
Markham, Sept. 26th, 1854.

COLONIAL.

A CHANGE.—The Quebec Mercury at first gave in its adhesion to the present Government, but seems to be disgusted at the way things are going on.—"The more one sees of the House, the more one is convinced of the burlesque on legislation there attempted. It would have been much better for the government to have had a temporary adjournment, than to allow every thing to go a-padrone as it now does. While we see inability on the ministerial benches most completely exemplified, and some insignificant dependence behind them attempting a show at doing something, it is really a deplorable sight to witness so magnificent a country under such a miserable government. Mr. Morin looks ashamed of himself for having been linked on the tail of Sir Allan, and does nothing. The Lower Canada section of the government resembles very much a dead body tied to a living one, the corruption of one part gaining ground upon the other.

"The District of Montreal, in sending the Rogue party into Parliament, has made a great step in advance. They are the nucleus of a regenerating influence for Lower Canada and, will gradually root out the Chabots, the Lemieux, and the Chaveaux,—fit instruments for such men as Mr. Hincks and those who are speculating on public property. We wished Sir Allan a better fate than die politically in such conspiracy!"

DEPARTURE OF THE 71st REGT.—A few minutes before the arrival of the Governor General at the Legislative Council Chamber to give his assent to the Reciprocity Bill, the 71st Regiment passed, preceded by the Band of the 26th Regiment enroute for embarkation in the steamship Cleopatra which is to carry it to England. The scene was thrillingly imposing. An immense crowd was assembled and as, "Auld lang syne" died upon the ear departed the 71st, than which a finer regiment is not in the British service, produced a sorrowful sensation. The 71st have conducted themselves well and were in consequence, generally favorites with all classes.—Quebec paper.

The Quebec Gazette makes use of the following language in reference to Mr. Price: "Mr. J. H. Price does not entertain a very exalted opinion of his former colleagues. He was himself but a milk and water politician; but he had an uncommonly adapted substitute for conscience, which in pious moments he would mistake for genuine conscientiousness. In one of these elysian modes he wrote as follows:—

"The present Executive has created more officers of enolument than all the Governors that Canada ever had, and any Governor with common capacity can now purchase a sufficient number of the members to carry on any system of government he pleases."

No doubt he is correct. Yet whilst in office with the chief of his much abused "Executive" he bottled up his knowledge, and it has not been till his retirement "to the bosom of his family" that he turns people's evidence. The world is full of hypocrites."

A BASE INSTITUTION.—"Mr. Powell hinted at a matter which is likely yet to receive more complete confirmation! he taunted the Brown-Macdonald party and the Rogues with having shown a desire to join the Conservatives. Were the leaders of the latter party not out of the House at present, it is quite likely we should be vouchsafed some further particulars on this interesting subject."

The above from the Quebec correspondent of the Leader, is an excessively mean insinuation. The writer knew just as well as we do that both Messrs. Brown and Macdonald repelled all advances made to them by the Conservatives. We hope that the "leaders of their party" will tell us everything they know on the subject. Mr. Powell, we may say, made no such statements as the Leader placed in his mouth.—Globe.

PLACEMENTS IN ASSEMBLY.—Instead of a free legislature, the Assembly will soon be a grand collection of every dependent person. President Macnab (Sir P. Head's general) $3600.—Solr. General East, Dunbr Ross, $2400.—President Morrison, Northern railway, 3,000.—Henry Smith, Solicitor-General West $2400.—Chief Comr. Public Works $3600.—Inspector General Cayley, $3600.—Crown Lands Commissioner Morin $3600.—Solicitor of Grand Trunk Cartier, say $6,000.—George Crawford, director Grand Trunk, say $800.—Attorney General East, Drummond, $4,000.—Mr. Turcotte (name of his office forgotten)—and a host more of contractors, solicitors, Queen's counsel, &c. It is right, it is necessary that any one of these persons should be in the Assembly!—Message.

The Governor General laid the first stone of the "Laval-University," at Quebec, on the 21st instant.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Hon. Mr. Morin introduced the Government measure to make the Legislative Council elective. He stated in answer to an inquiry by Mr. Brown, that immediately on the bill passing 20 members would be elected for 6 years, 10 for Upper and 10 for Lower Canada. The favored electoral districts being fixed by lot, that at the end of two years 20 additional members would be elected for six years, and at the end of two other years 20 more members for the same period. Solicitor General Ross to strike off Mr. Sandfield MacDonald's name from the Election Committee. Mr. Cartier put the motion in the absence of Solicitor General, and Messrs. Morrison, and Chabreau supported it, Mr. Lemieux and some other member also spoke in favor of it. Messrs J. H. Cameron, Powell, Stevenson, Langton, McKenzie and others strongly opposed it as an unnecessary attack both on Mr. Speaker Scott and the ex-Speaker. It was denied on the Ministerial side that any such attack was intended and that the only desire was to obtain an impartial Election Committee composed of men in equal proportions from both sections of the Province.

A good deal of warmth was manifested during the debate.

The result of the division was a large majority against the measure, viz:—

YEA'S.—Messrs. Blachet, Cartier, Chabot, Chabreau, Drouin, of two Mountains, Desautels, Felton, Fortier, Fournier, Labelle, Lemieux, Meagher, Morin, Poulin, Pothier, Rhodes, and Tache—18.

Arrival of the Alps.

The Alps with four days later has arrived with Liverpool dates of the 14th.

HALIFAX, Sept. 29th.

Cotton favours the buyers—tendency downward.

Flour declined 1s; Ohio 32s a 32s 6d. Corn also lower; sales—Michigan and yellow 32s 6d a 33s 6d.

Consols declined one-half; 95; a 95½.

Nothing of much importance in political news.

BRADSTRETS.—At the market we had a good attendance of country and local buyers, and wheat was readily sold at 3s 4d per bushel advances on the rates of Friday, which makes the advance of the week 6d a 3d per bushel. Flour not so active, but was 2s 6d a 3d per barrel, and sack better than this day week. Wheat quotations 7s 6d a 8s 1d. American Flour 31s. Corn, 34s a 36s, for American white. Flour at the close was heavy sales, Ohio 32s. Provisions quiet for all descriptions—it is prices as per Arabia. The London money market continues easy, with a tendency to lower rates—consols advanced to 95½ a 95½. Manchester trade steady.

The Steamer America arrived and all well. The news from the seat of war is generally of an important nature. The allied fleet with 76,000 men had left Yarna and were on their way to the Crimea.

The Austrian army still remains in the principalities, while the government of that country was using its most active exertions to stave off a collision with Russia.

There are new propositions between the respective power, but nothing definite has transpired.

A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Vienna under date of Sept. 8th, says the opinions of the Austrian Government, as they have been communicated to its diplomatic agents abroad, may be given in a few words.—These are that Austria still looks on the guarantee demanded by the Western Powers as the only basis for a durable peace, and will therefore, at the same time that she maintain her neutrality, neglect no opportunity of urging Russia to accept them. The writer says that the Prussian Government is even inclined as before to make common cause with the three Powers, the excuse for holding back being that the Emperor Nicholas has, at the demand of the German Powers, consented to quit the Turkish territories, and therefore Prussia does not feel herself called upon to actively interfere in the quarrel between the Western Powers and Russia.

The news from the Baltic is that no further important movement will be undertaken in that quarter during the present season.

A Constantinople writer states that on the 30th ult., not a solitary English or French vessel remained in the port or in the Bosphorus, all having left to place themselves under the order of the Admiral in the contemplated attack on the Crimea.

Mr. Soule has written a most violent letter to the Dario Espanol, in reply to the charge of the Madrid press of having participated in the recent events. The following is a copy of the letter:—

MADRID, August 24th, 1854.

SIR:—"The tone and character of the article referring to me, published in your number of this day, indicate too clearly the influence which conspired it, not to deserve from me the honor a reply. I have absented myself from Madrid because it is my pleasure to do so being accountable to no one for my acts or my conduct, the fear of being insulted by a person to whom my presence might be disagreeable, would not induce me to abandon my post. I fear neither the sneers of impertinent fellows nor the dangers of hired assassins; above all I do not fear the people; the people respect what is entitled to respect—they only stigmatize the wretches who flatter and deceive them—the people fight but are not assassins. With regard to the perfidious insinuations with which your article abounds, they are beneath my contempt, and I leave you the merit of the vainish with which you have glossed them over, and to those who deigned them the infamy of their invention.

I am sir
Your obt.
P. SOULE.

On motion of Mr. Provost, the petition of Mr. Smallwood Terrebonne was referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

The House refused to accede to a motion of Mr. Crawford, to suspend the rule for the extension of the Charter of the Brockville and Ottawa R. R. Co.

On motion of Mr. Cameron, an Address was ordered to Her Majesty to repeal the Act 5 and 6 Wm. 4th, Chap. 62 Section 15 in so far as relates to this Province.

Also on motion of the same member, an Address was ordered for an account of monies received and paid by the Toronto Harbour Commissioners.

LOCAL MATTER.

"Jerrold's News Bag" has been received. Notice next week.

JOSEPH HARTMAN Esq., M. P. P. will please except our thanks for parliamentary papers and documents, forwarded to this office.

To CORRESPONDENTS.—The last Chapter of the Chronicle of the North Riding has been unavoidably crowded out, on account of the late hour in which it was received. It will appear next week.

We shall next week publish the Speech of Hon. J. S. McDONALD. This speech successfully rebuts the statement made in certain quarters, that those who are now working with the party termed Tories, are annexationists.

LECTURE ON THE MAINE LIQUOR LAW.—We are requested to state that the Rev. J. E. Briggs will deliver a Lecture on the above subject at the Temperance Hall, in Sharon, this evening, [Friday.]

The Fourth Division Court, (late Sixth,) will be held in the Court House, Newmarket, on Friday, the 13th inst. We understand there will not be much business; nevertheless there are a few cases the decision of which will affect materially the interest of many, and will establish a principle in law little known in this section of the country.

Rumour says that the bridge on Water Street, near the Grist Mill, is in a very dangerous state,—there being several holes of large dimensions in it, and part of the guards, on the North side, broken off. If such is the fact, it would be well for the Overseers to look after it, ere they have damages to pay for broken limbs.

Certain parties have rumored in this section of the country that Mr. GUY, the Member for North Ontario, made a Speech in the House against Mr. HARTMAN, imputing him as being not down as the person to fill the office of Crown Land Commissioner. We contradict this on authority; and further state, that the remark was made by HICKES, after which Mr. HARTMAN denied the statement upon the floor of the House, and challenged the late Inspector to the proof, but could not be produced. Such is the fact.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—The Lecturer employed by the Canadian Prohibitory Liquor League Association, the Rev. J. E. RYAN, delivered an excellent address, in the Methodist Chapel, in this place, on Monday evening last, the 2nd inst. The house was well filled, and the audience appeared attentive and pleased. The argumentative manner in which the Rev. gentleman handled his subject was powerful and convincing. At the close of the speech, Mr. NIXON, the chairman, stated that he had petitioned to the Legislature ready for signature which, we understand, were numerous signed.

MONTHLY FAIR.—The regular monthly fair for the sale of Fat Stock was held in Newmarket on Wednesday last, the 4th inst. and was well attended. Upwards of $1,200 changed hands by way of purchases, and much more would have been brought, had the stock offered been in good condition. There is one thing we beg to remind the farmers of, viz.: there is no use in bringing in lean stock, the butchers can get plenty of that description near hand. And the reason why the Fair was established was to find Fat Stock ready to take in the market of once. We frequently hear parties grumbling because they have not made a sale; at the same time they are free to admit their stock was not fit to kill. Butchers do not want the trouble of feeding; and this is the reason why a Monthly Fair was established here, so that they could procure cattle ready for the market without further trouble.

General Summary.

Rumor at Quebec says, the Reserves are to be secularized by the Government. Separate Schools are to be tolerated and fostered in our midst. What says old Reformers in this, who have been fighting our political battles for years past?

We learn from the North American that Mr. McDONALD's prospects in North West were as of the most cheering character. We truly hope Mr. STANLEY will be chosen for he had no business to join the coalition; had he not done so, he might have been occupying the same position in a Cabinet of honest and consistent Reformers, he now occupies amongst the non-descripts.

THE RECIPROCITY BILL.—This Bill was hurried through the House, without giving time for the people's Representatives to express their opinions, on the promises of Government, that so far as Canada was concerned it would take immediate effect. But also for the promises of the new coalition, no sooner does it pass the House and receive the assent of this Excellency, than we are told the Lower Provinces and the Home Government must first legislate upon it. This may be set down as blunder. No one, for a commencement.

DEFEAT OF THE COALITION.—By reference to our parliamentary report under date of Sept. 30th, it will be seen that the present Coalition was defeated, on a question as to whether J. S. McDONALD should be one to compose the "election committee." This defeat was decisive 18 to 46. Perhaps it will teach the coalition not to tamper too far with the better sense of the House, or they may, in an inauspicious hour, be left in the lurch.

Another Specimen.

We copy the following choice specimen of what the New Ministry are capable of, from the correspondence of the Welland Herald. If such is the fact, and we have no reason to disbelieve it, that the following persons compose the Railway Committee, look out for speculation.

Railroad Committee.
BELLINGHAM, B. R. H.
CAWLEY, Grand Trunk Solicitor.
LEMBUR, Pres. North Shore R. R.
MORIN, to be replaced by Sir A. McNab, G. W. R. TACHE.
BUREAU.
PAPIN.
Crawford, Grand Trunk Director.
Hicks, do do.
Morrison, President Ontario & Simcoe R. R.
Robinson, do do.
Jas. Smith, President Port Hope R. R.
Merritt, do do.

Those in capitals are Lower Canada men, and the others Upper Canadians. TEN Lower to SEVEN Upper, and only two new members in the Committee. Amongst them will be found TEN Old Holders, connected with the Grand Trunk or other Railroad lines. Such is the justice that Upper Canada is treated with.

21st, Near Newmarket, on the 28th ult., the lady of J. CLUNIE, Esq., of a son.

THE GREAT TUR

AMUSEMENT.

Why is a horse half way through a gate like a half penny? Because there's a head at one side and a tail at the other.

It is rumored that a celebrated phenologist has been invited to examine the "head of navigation."

Thermistoles used to say, "My little boy rules Athens; for he governs his mother and his mother governs me."

We know a gentleman who is such a determined teetotaler, that he shuts himself up and feels miserable whenever the weather is not temperate.

"Constitutionally tired," is now the polite way of expressing the fact that a man is naturally lazy. We live in wonderful refined times.

We have an acquaintance who would like to swear but lacks the courage. When he wants to be expressive, he says, "May I be eternally Amsterdammed!" if it is not so, what a way that of getting around a stump, isn't it?

"Pneumotonic!"—By a series of interesting experiments lately made in Philadelphia, a woman's tongue has been capable of moving ten thousand nine hundred and twenty times in a minute! Think of that and weep!

1. To preserve Apples, &c.—Take apples, and pack them in clean, dry, chopped straw, so that they do not touch each other.
2. Dip each apple separately into melted wax, then pack as above.

Don't trifle with the affections of young ladies. They are institutions that never were established for any such purpose. If you don't contemplate marriage certificates and the person, French bestsides, a five hundred dollar house-rent, and a prospective home for the old folks, just take your hat and leave. You've no more right to go on trifling with confiding ladies, than a holly-hock has to pass itself off for a rose.

AFTER THREE.—Two specimens of poor weak human nature were seated in a parlor. The hour was rather objectionable. Francis consulted his watch. Annie was too abstracted to observe the movement.

"I'm after three!" he said with surprise.
"After three!" exclaimed the bewildered girl, "Pray who are the other two?"

At the theatre one evening, behind the scenes, Suett observed a performer put something under his cloak and asked him "what he had got there?" "Only my dagger," answered the player. Suett, however, drew out a small bottle, and having ascertained that it contained his favorite beverage, drank the contents, and returned him the bottle with these words—"there's the sheath."

FORGETFULNESS.—Lessing, the celebrated German poet, was remarkable for a frequent absence of mind. Having missed money several times without being able to discover who took it, he determined to put the honesty of his servants to the test, and left a handful of gold upon the table. "Of course you counted it," said one of his friends. "Counted it," said Lessing, rather embarrassed, "no, I forgot that."

An Irishman had been sick a long time, and while in this state would occasionally cease breathing, and life be apparently extinct for some time, when he would come to. On one of these occasions, when he had just awakened from his sleep, Patrick asked him, "An' how'll we know, Jenny, when you're dead?" "You'll know, my son, when you're dead!" "Bring me a glass of grog, my son, to me, 'Here's till ye Jenny, an' if I don't rise an' drink, then bury me."

The consummate epicurism and coarse manners of Quin the actor, often rendered him a very disagreeable guest. Dinning one day with the duchess of Marlborough, her grace, to his great surprise, helped herself to the least part of a haunch of venison, which stood near her. "What?" said Quin, "and does your Grace eat no fat?" "No—never, I assure you." Too much affected to restrain his genuine sentiments, the epicure exclaimed, "I like to dine with such fools."

DEFERRED NEWS.

JOSEPH GOULD, Esq., M. P. P.—We have not yet had time to form a correct estimate of the course of the Member for the North Riding. We have no doubt that corruption, flattery and intimidation will be used with the most profuse liberality towards all the new and inexperienced members in Parliamentary tactics. How far these members will submit to the wiles of the cunning one time alone will show. On the different divisions on Broderick's election for the County of Bagat, we find Mr. Gould's name alongside that of Hinks. Mr. Broderick, was Postmaster, Returning Officer, and Candidate. He returned himself as elected against all law and precedent. The Ministry wanted him, but even their most unscrupulous retainers showed a repugnance to this bare faced outrage on the rights of the people, and refused to support them. Mr. Gould, we regret to say, voted that the Ministry were right in endeavoring to fill the House with creatures of their own nomination in violation of the election laws. We hope Mr. Gould will be able to give satisfactory reasons to his constituents, for sustaining the Ministry thus early in this last act of glaring corruption.

On the vote for Speaker, Mr. Gould's name first figured with the minority.—Reporter.

NEWS FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.—Our advices from Honolulu are to the 20th July. A fleet of eight English and French men-of-war made a rendezvous at Honolulu, whence they sailed on the 20th of July, standing to the westward, on the look-out for several Russian ships, and probably intending a descent on the Russian possessions northward. King Kamehameha III, the royal family and the court, accompanied by the representatives of foreign nations, and a large company, partook of the hospitalities of the admirals. Miss Catherine Hayes gave a concert at Honolulu to a full house on the 23rd July, and left on the 20th for Australia. She created quite a sensation.

JAS. WATSON WEBB, of the Courier and Enquirer, now in England, predicts, that before Christmas wheat will decline in Great Britain from 65s. per quarter to 45s. Last year he made a prediction on the probable rise of wheat to double its commercial value at the time of writing, September, and saw his prediction verified. He describes the harvest as prolific.

By a special Telegraphic despatch from Quebec last night, we learn that great excitement prevails on account of Hinks having sold the Reformers to McNab and has admitted his treachery. Spence, Smith (Port Hope), Southwick Niles, and Ross are among the traitors. Spence was hanged in the house. Messrs. Merritt, McDonald of Glangarry, Freeman, Rolph and others denounced the condition as base, and Hinks as a traitor. A meeting of Independent Reformers was held yesterday morning and adopted an Address to the Electors.—North American.

In illustration of the value of a newspaper, in a more pecuniary sense, we give one of a thousand cases which might be quoted:—

The Ogdensburgh Sentinel tells us a good story at the expense of one of its subscribers who had stopped the paper because it had so many advertisements in it. Just after he stopped the paper his farm was advertised delinquent and sold. After a while, probably by the ruin of his credit he discovered his "fix," and by spending two days time, and paying ten per cent penalty he redeemed his farm. On his way home he stopped at the Sentinel office and re-subscribed, and departed a wiser man.

On Friday last, a serious fire occurred at the village of Somerville, Dunlop Street, by which Ward's mill was totally consumed. The fire is said to have commenced in the engine room. Besides the buildings, 2000 bushels of wheat and 100 barrels of flour were destroyed. The property was insured for $200.—Colonist.

The Millerites are having an exciting time at Syracuse. We do not learn of many having become converts to this delusion. The 19th of next May is the day now fixed for the termination of all things earthly.

Lives of Great Men of all Nations.

A BOOK HAS JUST BEEN PUBLISHED, ENTITLED,
"Illustrated Biography of the Great and Good of all Nations and all Times."
It comprises the memories of the most illustrious personages of the world, whether as Statesmen, Artists, Philosophers, Heroes, Reformers, Philanthropists, Mechanics, Navigators, Authors, Poets, Divines, Soldiers, or Savants; and much historical matter to elucidate the lives of the great actors in the events of nations. It is illustrated with an elegant illuminated frontispiece, and over 250 portraits and other engravings, and contains about 600 pages, large octavo, hand-omely bound in embossed morocco or muslin gilt. Price $2 50.
The unanimous opinion of the press is expressed in the following extracts:
"Good judgment, compact and unostentatious style, a fine spirit, are to be accorded to this volume."
—N. Y. Evangelist.
"The sketches are prepared with good judgment, and present a mass of interesting information which it would be difficult to obtain elsewhere in so brief a compass."
—N. Y. Tribune.
"It cannot fail to interest the farmer and mechanic, as well as the orator and statesman. This work of merit should have a place in every family."
—Sabbath Recorder.

"Mr. Savage has made just the sort of book to be thumbed and read, and read again, by all the reading members of the family."
—Home Journal.

The author has exercised a discriminating judgment and jealous regard to the real facts of history, omitting all fabulous and legendary matter."
—Christian Advocate.
"As a work of popular reference it cannot fail to command an extensive circulation."
—Harpers' Magazine.

The memoirs are well prepared, some of them with special discrimination and care; and as the characters included are the marked men of all ages, this illustrated volume cannot fail to find its way into thousands of family libraries."
—Literary World.
